HISTORY OF THE HUNNEWELL CLUB OF NEWTON

The accompanying "History of the Hunnewell Club of Newton" was written by Mason H. Stone, Jr., who has stated that it was "compiled from my father's notes for the talk he gave November 14, 1947, and from my notes for the talk I gave at the 75th Anniversary dinner on November 14, 1972. Also included are facts and recollections from my membership in the Club since the fall of 1928, when I was a junior member and a junior in Newton High School, as well as having been the only three-term President of the Club in succession, as well as Secretary for 15 years, Treasurer for three, and Bowling Chairman and a participant in many other activities; also in reorganizing Club records in the file cabinet."

HISTORY OF THE HUNNEWELL CLUB OF NEWTON

The Hunnewell Club building at the corner of Church and Eldredge Streets in Newton is one of the last of the old clubhouse buildings surviving in the city. A similar building, the Newton Club founded in 1887, stood on the site of the Newtonville branch of the Public Library. The Auburndale Club is still standing as is the West Newton Neighborhood Club, but the Northgate Club on the west side of West Newton has gone. The Waban Neighborhood Club is a much more recent building.

In 1895, Freelan O. Stanley, one of the Stanley twins who founded the Stanley Steamer Motor Car Company with other residents of the two square mile area bounded by Park and Tremont Streets, the Brighton line, the Charles River, Nonantum Place, and Washington Street back to Park Street, formed the Hunnewell Hill Club. Membership was limited to men living in this area, with forty original members, the first clubhouse being the Bartlett mansion on Braemore Road. This house is still standing housing several families.

The need of a larger social club became due to expanding membership demands for the larger community known as Newton Corner. On November 3, 1897, Mr. Stanley called to order a meeting of twelve representative men from the Newton Corner area at the Hunnewell Hill Club to form a Massachusetts corporation under the name of The Hunnewell Club of Newton, Massachusetts, "for the purpose of establishing and maintaining places for reading rooms and social meetings." On November 15, 1897, these twelve associates were granted a charter by the Commonwealth.

On December 4, 1897, the Club accepted the property and assets of the Hunnewell Hill Club and assumed all of its liabilities. The Club became so popular that membership was limited to two hundred and fifty men and larger quarters were needed.

The Stanley twins had made their money by inventing the photographic dry plate process and selling it to the Eastman Kodak Company. Freelan suggested to his twin brother, Francis E., who was later killed in a highway steam car accident, that they build a clubhouse on its present location. Plans and specifications were obtained, land purchased, and the building was completed. It was one of the first private buildings of its type to be of steel frame construction using the finest materials available, with interior finish in some instances hand carved and of mahogany wood. Lighting was by gas in finely crafted Towle type brass fixtures. Money was raised by the members for the furnishings which were of the finest quality and best taste that money could buy. Electricity replaced gas lighting some years later.

The physical plant consisted of a large combination pool and billiard room on the first floor with two full cushion billiard tables and two combination pool and billiard tables, as well as the office, the library, the reading room, the men's coat room and lavatory, and the main hall and entrance. On the second floor were a serving kitchen, a large room used both as a dining room and as a card playing room, a second smaller card room, the ladies' parlor, the ladies' coat and powder room and toilet. On the third floor was the assembly hall accommodating several hundred persons, with a stage and two anterooms. In the basement were initially a locker room with men's showers and toilets, a full-sized kitchen where meals were prepared and sent by dumb waiter to the serving kitchen on the second floor, the heating plant boiler room, and the original four bowling alleys, two more being added at later dates. The alleys were equipped both for the tenpin bowling with the large finger grip balls and for the Boston pins with the small balls, these pins being specially manufactured for the private clubs in the Greater Boston area.

The exterior of the building was of Grecian style with a granite foundation and its appearance was majestic with its columns and rooftop and porch roof balustrades with ornate finials. These latter have since succumbed to time and the elements. The fact that no major structural changes have been required in the building is evidence of the foresight of the Stanley brothers, especially when the building was completed in such a short time. Subsequently two excellently constructed clay tennis courts were added on the property.

On Saturday, April 2, 1898, the Hunnewell Club held its first meeting for members only as inspection night and to receive custody of the property on a free lease rental basis from the Stanley brothers. On April 13th, there was a reception night for members and their families and the Club began functioning in its new quarters.

The Club soon became recognized as a center of community interest and a prime factor in social life. It was a common meeting place for men of all walks of life and hospitality has always been of prime importance. When it first started, membership consisted mostly of men from the Newton Corner area. The original house rules, in the light of present day circumstances, were quite strict with rules posted for each activity. "Visitors" had to be those having residence or a place of business within four miles of the Clubhouse and could only "visit" once in thirty days. A "Stranger" was a person who resided or had a business more than four miles from the Club and could not be introduced as a "stranger" again for less than three months, but could become a "visitor" once in thirty days. Ladies and minors over fifteen were extended privileges but were restricted to certain days. Ladies were first admitted as Associate Members in 1919 and to full membership in 1957. Junior memberships for males over sixteen were established in 1927.

The Club was in its heyday in its early existence. A uniformed steward, uniformed doormen, uniformed boys setting pins in the bowling alleys and uniformed attendants at the pool and billiard tables to chalk cues and rack balls, etc. were part of the staff. Its elegance and operation and facilities were unsurpassed in the Greater Boston area, and to be a member was to be in a position of considerable prestige.

Activities included tennis with two well-equipped courts, billiards and pool with special exhibitions by champion players such as the world renowned Willie Hoppe, bridge and other card games such as the annual New Year's Morning Hearts Game, and of course bowling was the mainstay of all activities. A badminton court was laid out on the floor of the third floor Stanley Hall in the 1930's and a ping pong table was also added.

The Club had men's and women's teams in the Newton and Greater Boston Suburban Leagues (made up of private clubs such as Boston City, University (Boston) Maugus (Wellesley) Weston Golf, Middlesex Sportsmen (Arlington) Waban, West Newton, Auburndale and even Commercial Club in Brockton) rolling both Bottle or tenpin, and Boston pins, later called candle pins. The men's candle pin team is still functioning. Bottle pin bowling had to be given up, automatic pinsetters were installed as there were no pinsetters which would handle both types. The change from Boston to candle pins came earlier as there were no longer Boston pins available and the other clubs were using candle pins. The Club also belonged to the Metropolitan Boston Club's Duplicate Bridge League with a team of players until the late 1960's.

Mr. Freelan Stanley was fond of music, his first profession being that of a quality violin maker, and he early instituted an annual series of Sunday afternoon concerts with a tea time intermission period which filled Stanley Hall to capacity and were continued until the late 1930's with the aid of Mr. Carl Pierce, who lived on Eldredge Street across from the Club and who was on the staff of the New England Conservatory of Music. Many young and talented musicians were started or aided in their careers by Mr. Stanley's sponsorship and patronage.

An active membership up to the 1950's participated in other activities such as minstrel shows, fund raising fairs, productions put on by the Hunnewell Players, dances and other forms of social activities. The Clubhouse, under the ownership of the Club members also served as a meeting place for the Boy Scouts, the Newton Community Club, and other civic and community organizations, political rallies, etc. It also has housed several dancing schools and assemblies and a kindergarten school. The Club also published the Hunnewell Club News for a period of years with news of members' activities as well as Club scheduled activities and their results, and news of the very active interclub men's and women's bowling leagues.

In 1929, Mr. Freelan Stanley, the surviving twin, was Club President and offered to sell the Club property to the members for the original cost of its construction, the now incredible sum of $25,000. The purchase was quickly accomplished, the deed recorded December 31, 1929. Mr. Stanley kept up an active interest in the Club, particularly in playing pool and billiards and his opponents had great difficulty in winning from the 80-year-old gentleman.

However, pool and billiards gradually lost favor and the big room was converted into a lounge room where dances and other functions would be held that would not require the use of the third floor hall. One combination pool and billiard table was moved into the reading room and the other three tables were sold. The basement kitchen had long since ceased to be used, the serving kitchen on the second floor taking its place. By 1942, the tennis courts had been abandoned due to deterioration of the backstops and the commencement of World War II. Membership had gradually been falling off due to the deaths of the older, wealthier members, who had been responsible for its founding and initial success, and due to the inability to attract young people as members whose interests were elsewhere. However, the war with its rationing programs temporarily rekindled community and activity for its duration, but subsequently the decline continued. The 250 member limitation and the waiting list were things of the past. The Club with the advent of the automobile had changed in membership area and mobility from the horse and carriage and the pedestrian original membership, but the mobility and speed of travel the auto provided, coupled with the coming of moving and then talking pictures, radio, and finally television, all diverted membership activities away from the Club. The cost of maintaining the building and its operation were also becoming burdensome. The falling off of member interest and participation got the Club into financial difficulties and it seemed as though a sale of the property would be required with a disbanding of the Club membership.

However, when the Eliot Church burned in 1954, it became necessary for the congregation, many of whom were Hunnewell Club members, to find a new home, and it was arranged for the Church to take over the mortgage and occupy and maintain the building. The Club retained jurisdiction over the bowling alleys and was given noninterfering use of the other building facilities. This arrangement was terminated in 1959 when the Church occupied its newly completed building, with the Club reassuming the mortgage and paying the church for any capital improvements it made. However, membership declined even after automatic pinsetters were purchased and installed in the bowling alleys to solve the problem of being unable to obtain satisfactory boys to set the pins, a problem which had caused quite a few members to give up bowling and who did not resume the activity even with the pinsetters available.

In 1967, when the Pomroy Foundation was forced to find a new home for the Pomroy House, the sale of the Club property to the Foundation was transacted. The Hunnewell Club membership retained the ownership of the bowling alleys and pinsetters and was allowed to have the use of the original basement kitchen and locker room, hallway, and toilet-shower areas with the understanding that these areas could be remodeled for Club uses.

As a result, the Club installed a gas unit to separately heat the reactivated kitchen, which was furnished with its own independent electric hot water heater, also to heat the bowling area, and the present clubroom, created from the old locker room, storage closets and hallway. The toilets were relocated and a separate electrical system was installed to furnish power for the pinsetters and all of the lighting and facilities in the remodeled Club area.

The Club at the time of the sale had prospective purchasers at a higher price than that paid by the Pomroy Foundation, but the Club wished to keep the property as a service in some form to the community and to maintain the property in its original form in the neighborhood. In its activities by this time it had become mainly a bowling club with some other social activities such as were permitted by its limited quarters. However, arrangements were made with the Pomroy House personnel for noninterfering use of the other building facilities whenever desired. Occupation by the Club was to be for a five-year period with option for renewal.

At the time of the Pomroy sale, the Clubhouse furnishings which remained, and which had been greatly decreased by wear and tear and hard usage, were sold to the members at what were established as fair value prices. Upon completion of the new quarters new furnishings were purchased and the Hunnewell Club is now functioning on a relatively sound financial basis with a relatively limited membership.

FEBRUARY MEETING

A meeting of the General Membership was held on February 2, 1987. Meeting was called to order by President Andy Hanson at 7:50 P.M. at the Eliot Church, Church Street, Newton, Mass. with 22 members present. Andy displayed the original Charter for everyone to read. The Club was started on November 15, 1897, and was accepted by the Secretary of State on that date.

Irma read the Treasurer's report which showed a balance of $2,156.31. Report was accepted as read.

Andy stated that the reason for calling this general meeting was for the membership decide as to the exact manner in which they wished to dissolve the Club and use up the Treasury, leaving no balance.

Ed suggested that we hold the Annual Meeting in April for this decision since there was so many members absent tonight, at which time we should really discuss the outcome.

The second suggestion was to continue until the money was used up. The March and April dinners could be paid for from the Treasury.

Irma made the third suggestion that we return to everyone his dues, totalling $555 annually, of pay off two years dues. There are 37 paid members. Bea suggested that we should decide now, but Ed stated that the April meeting would be best since all the people should be there. Elizabeth Bell suggested we vote by a show of hands. Ken Bourne stated that there seems to be no one who will accept the responsibility of handling or directing the Club.

Andy summed up the three suggestions:

1. Final decision be made at the April Annual Meeting.
2. Continue until the money is used up.
3. Pay off the assets now by returning everyone's dues.

Ed stated that the Hunnewell By-Laws states that the Club cannot allow the dissolvment of funds.

Bea suggested that we hold Reunions in the future.

After much discussion it was agreed that our March dinner be held at the Cottage Crest, Waltham, on March 12, 6:00 P.M. for Social Hour and the dinner be served at 7:00 P.M. The Annual Meeting and dinner will be held at the Steak Place, Brighton, on 23 April. The Club will pay the whole bill. Kay King will make arrangements for March, and Ed Knapp will take care of the April dinner, both subject to availability. We will have a choice of three entrees - all in the same price range. Ed stated that the Charter must be returned to the Secretary of State. Andy stated that he also has a "Hand Seal". Irma stated that she has paid for the Church thru February. There will be no Board Meeting in March.

Kay made the motion to adjourn, seconded by Andy, and meeting adjourned at 8:25 P.M.

THE HUNNEWELL CLUB

1986 - 1987 SEASON

The final dinner meeting of The Hunnewell Club was held on Thursday, April 23, 1987, at the Steak Place, Brighton, Mass, 6:00 P.M. for a happy hour, and dinner was served at 7:00 P.M. There were thirty in attendance.

pro Tom
Our President, Andy Hanson, thanked Ed Knapp for making all the arrangements. Our Bowling Team won the Trophy for this season, and Phil Harrington was appointed Custodian for this long awaited Cup, which is truly beautiful.

Insert
The Newton Public Library is interested in our Club and shall take whatever we think worthy of saving. We have several copies of the History, compiled by Mason Stone, and everyone is asked to take a copy. Andy has the framed Charter, By-Laws and all pertinent information. There will be about $500.00 left in the Treasury after we pay the dinner bill, and it was agreed to donate this balance to the Newton Public Library for its building fund. (For information, the Jackson Homestead is not interested in any of our records.)

Phil Harrington reported on the Hunnewell Club Bowling League which is a member of the Newton City Bowling League, comprised of several surrounding community leagues. Ed Loring, who was a great bowler with the League for many years, for whom the Bowling Cup was named in his honor, will be long remembered. For the first time, this year the Hunnewell Club won the trophy. Whichever club wins the Championship for the year, keeps the Trophy for the following year, and Phil Harrington is now the custodian of the Loring Cup.

Phil also reported on Mason Stone's physical condition. He has had a blocked blood clot, moved to another hospital, and had his foot amputated, and is currently at the Hubbard Rehab. Hospital. Esther said that he is improving. However, she may have to go to a Rest Home herself.

Ed Knapp stated the reason the Hunnewell Club won the Trophy was due to the fact that he filled in the last half of the year. He also reported that the Newton Library will go to his house and take from his garage everything of importance relating to the Club. He also reported that he and Betty received a card from Mario Storlazzi who said that he is now married and intends to come to Boston to visit.

Barbara Stackpole suggested that the group get together soon, and she will send out cards, with the help of Ann Tocci, if everyone so desires to keep in touch.

Wilbar Hayes is now in the Belmont Manor Nursing Home, 34 Agsiz Ave., (off Trapelo Rd.) Belmont.

President Andy Hanson requested that each member take a copy of the By Laws and History.

Since there has been no vote taken by the members of the Hunnewell club as to its continuation or dissolution, and no official action has been taken to return the Charter to the Massachusetts Secretary of State, and also that the By Laws state that the Club cannot allow the dissolvment of funds, the Hunnewell Club is still a bonafide organization.

Therefore, in accordance with the By Laws of the Hunnewell Club, which were initiated, accepted, and adhered to by the Club members for ninety years, an additional meeting must be held with all members present, if possible, as to the continuation or dissolvment of the Hunnewell Club.

Copies of this "Draft" Minutes are being sent to each Officer and Executive Board member, as requested by our President, and subject to approval by the entire Board.

Respectfully submitted:
